STATEMENT OF INTEREST OF THE AMICI CURIAE

Consent to file this amicus brief was given by both parties. This brief supporting Petitioner was prepared by counsel for amici.<sup>1</sup>

At the heart of this case is the future of the “health” exception articulated in Roe v. Wade and Doe v. Bolton. Amici Sandra Cano is the “Doe” of Doe v. Bolton. It was Doe v. Bolton which provided for the health exception and led to partial-birth abortion and abortion on demand. While it is unusual for a successful litigant to file an amicus brief opposing the health exception which was the heart of her case, Mrs. Cano in fact never wanted an abortion in Doe v. Bolton and fraud was perpetrated on the Court. Her Affidavit is Appendix A. In addition, the three-doctor provision of the Georgia statute which provided actual verification and protection for women was struck down in Doe. Furthermore, the “health” exception has been broadly interpreted and thereby ultimately led to partial-birth abortion. Mrs. Cano supports Congress’ position omitting the “health” exception and urges this Court to give deference to Congress and hold the ban on partial-birth abortion constitutional.

Other amici are 180 post-abortive women who have suffered the adverse emotional and psychological effects of abortion. Congress in its findings only discussed the physical health consequences of abortion. However, other health consequences not stated in Congress’ findings would be helpful to the Supreme Court in making its decision. The women attest to the fact that there are adverse emotional and psychological health effects that have affected their lives. All of the women have used their full name in the original Affidavits, but some have requested that only their initials be used publicly to protect their confidentiality.

Although the Supreme Court only made non-evidence based assumptions in Roe v. Wade and Doe v. Bolton because abortion was generally not legal or widespread, the post-abortive women amici provide this Court with their real life experiences and attest that abortion in practice hurts women's health. Post-abortive women were asked, "How has abortion affected you?" Some of the women's Affidavit testimony is in the brief with the complete answer to that question from the amici in Appendix B. ## SUMMARY OF THE ARGUMENT

I

At the heart of this case is the future of the “health” exception established in Doe v. Bolton. The health exception has been broadly interpreted to even include the partial-birth abortion procedure which Congress has defined as “gruesome and inhumane.” This Court has recognized that the state may promote but not endanger a woman’s health when it regulates the methods of abortion. But after thirty-three years of real life experiences, post-abortive women and Sandra Cano, “Doe” herself, now attest that abortion hurts women and endangers their physical, emotional, and psychological health. Therefore, the ban on partial-birth abortion which excludes a health exception should be held constitutional.

II

This Court should re-evaluate the health exception considering the extensive evidence that Congress heard and its findings of fact. Congress found that the partial-birth abortion procedure is never medically necessary to preserve the health of the mother and, in fact, poses serious risks to the long-term health of women. Numerous state legislatures are currently holding hearings and also are finding the long-term negative health effects of abortion. The sworn Affidavit evidence of post-abortive women also demonstrates that abortion hurts women physically, emotionally, and psychologically. This Court now has the benefit of fact-finding by Congress and the states as well as the real life experience of post-abortive women and therefore should give deference to those findings and exclude a health exception.

III

This case demonstrates the need to examine the underlying assumptions of a “health” exception. This case also demonstrates that the health exception involves complex physical, emotional, and psychological health issues. Such issues are best left to fact-finders and policy makers in the federal and/or the state legislative branches. Therefore, this Court should give deference to Congress’ findings of fact and hold the partial-birth abortion ban constitutional.

ARGUMENT*I. THE “HEALTH” EXCEPTION IS NOT A PER SE REQUIREMENT AND THIRTY-THREE YEARS OF REAL LIFE EXPERIENCE DEMONSTRATES THAT IT SHOULD BE ABANDONED BECAUSE THE “HEALTH” EXCEPTION IN FACT CREATES SERIOUS ADVERSE CONSEQUENCES TO WOMEN’S HEALTH.

The health exception has been defined so broadly that it allows abortion on demand and the partial-birth abortion procedure which Congress defined as “gruesome and inhumane.”<sup>2</sup> In a precursor to Roe v. Wade, this Court had an opportunity to analyze the word “health” in the District of Columbia abortion statute.<sup>3</sup> This Court stated that the general usage and modern understanding of the term “health” includes both psychological and physical well-being.<sup>4</sup>

In Roe v. Wade, the Court did not focus on the health exception as it did in Doe v. Bolton. However, the Court made the following observation: “Maternity, or additional offspring, may force upon the woman a distressful life and future. Psychological harm may be imminent.”<sup>5</sup>

In Doe, the Court stated that the health exception could be judged “. . . in light of all factors – physical, emotional, psychological, familial, and the woman’s age – relevant to the well-being of the patient.”<sup>6</sup> In his concurring opinion, Chief Justice Burger recognized that the term health was used “in its broadest medical context.”<sup>7</sup> At the time, he believed that the decision would not have the sweeping effect that the dissenting Justices forewarned because physicians would observe the standards of their profession and only act after careful deliberation concerning judgments of life and health.<sup>8</sup> He also believed that the Court rejected “any claim that the Constitution requires abortions on demand.”<sup>9</sup> Unfortunately, Chief Justice Burger’s assumptions have not been realized in the thirty-three years of real life experiences of the post-abortive women. Because of the broad definition of health and the fact that “health” is determined solely by one woman and one abortionist profiting from the abortion, America in effect has abortion on demand and partial-birth abortion. Furthermore, there is not a careful or narrow view of “health” and abortionists and women do not have a normal doctor-patient relationship as the post-abortive women attest.<sup>10</sup>

<sup>10</sup> For example, H.T. (Texas) – “Experienced major clinical depression during and after birth of oldest living child after I learned how abortions were performed and more about fetal development.” App. B at 30. M.J.H. (Tennessee) – “I had ten years of depression, anxiety, and panic attacks that I had trouble understanding . . . Those ten years of my life were spent in anguish due to a decision that I had made based upon misinformation and untruths.” App. B at 39.

The broad interpretation of “health” is certainly evident in Justice Douglas’ concurring opinion.<sup>11</sup> Justice Douglas elaborated on the meaning of health with a very broad definition. He stated: “Elaborate argument is hardly necessary to demonstrate that childbirth may deprive a woman of her preferred lifestyle and force upon her a radically different and undesired future.”<sup>12</sup>

Justice Douglas expanded the definition of “health” to include “hardships” by stating:

The vicissitudes of life produce pregnancies which may be unwanted, or which may impair ‘health’ in the broad Vuitch sense of the term, or which may imperil the life of the mother, or which in the full setting of the case may create such suffering, dislocations, misery, or tragedy as to make an early abortion the only civilized step to take. These hardships may be properly embraced in the ‘health’ factor of the mother as appraised by a person of insight.

In Casey, this Court stated that “psychological well-being is a facet of health.”<sup>13</sup> This Court also stated that there could be “devastating psychological consequences” if a woman’s decision was not fully informed and truthful, not misleading.<sup>14</sup> The post-abortive women amici attest to the “psychological consequences” that they experienced when they were not fully informed of the physical and psychological consequences of abortion and the information they were given by the abortionist or the abortion facility staff was in fact misleading.<sup>15</sup>

In Stenberg v. Carhart,<sup>16</sup> this Court held that the Nebraska statute violated the Constitution because it lacked the health exception. But this Court also cautioned that “a State may promote but not endanger a woman’s health when it regulates the methods of abortion.”<sup>17</sup> This Court indicated that it had invalidated statutes that in the process of regulating the methods of abortion had imposed significant health risks.<sup>18</sup> It is not, however, the method of abortion that creates the health risk, it is the abortion itself. Congress found that “partial-birth abortion is never necessary to preserve the health of a woman” but “poses significant health risks to a woman . . .”<sup>19</sup> Thus, the State would actually be endangering the woman’s health by allowing partial-birth abortion. In other procedures such as silicone breast implants, a woman and her doctor cannot make that surgery choice because the federal Food and Drug Administration placed a moratorium on the device due to the health risks that were involved.<sup>20</sup> Therefore, they should not be able to “choose” abortion which is a more dangerous and risky procedure.

In the most recent decision concerning the health exception, the Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit found that the health exception is not a per se requirement.<sup>21</sup> In that case, the Ohio statute prohibited the use of RU-486 for the purpose of inducing an abortion unless certain criteria were met.<sup>22</sup> Challenges were made to the statute including that it lacked the constitutionally mandated health exception.<sup>23</sup> The district court held that the health exception was required, thus imposing a per se requirement.<sup>24</sup> The Court of Appeals, however, stated this was erroneous and that no such blanket per se requirement has been imposed.<sup>25</sup> The court concluded that the health exception is “constitutionally necessary where substantial medical authority indicates that a banned procedure would be safer than the other available procedures, not just when banning the procedure subjects a woman to risks from the pregnancy itself.”<sup>26</sup>

FDA Breast Implant Consumer Handbook – 2004, www.fda.gov/cdrh/breastimplants/handbook2004. The FDA found that the implants caused such problems as fibrous capsular contracture, silicone gel leakage and migration, infection, interference with early tumor detection, human carcinogenicity, and autoimmune disease.

In the present case, Congress concluded after extensive hearings that the partial-birth abortion procedure is never medically necessary to preserve the health of the mother.<sup>27</sup> In fact, Congress found that the partial-birth abortion procedure poses “serious risks to the long-term health of women and in some circumstances, their lives.”<sup>28</sup> Thus, there is no per se requirement for inclusion of the health exception, and therefore, the ban on the partial-birth abortion procedure is constitutional.

II. CONGRESS CORRECTLY OMITTED THE “HEALTH” EXCEPTION CONSIDERING THE SIGNIFICANT FACTUAL FINDINGS THAT THE PARTIAL-BIRTH ABORTION PROCEDURE IS NEVER MEDICALLY NECESSARY TO PRESERVE THE MOTHER’S HEALTH AND POSES SERIOUS ADVERSE CONSEQUENCES TO A WOMAN’S HEALTH.

This Court should re-evaluate the health exception considering the extensive evidence that Congress heard and its findings of fact. It is clear that Congress recognizes the problems with the health exception.<sup>29</sup> In addition, one state has banned abortion based on the negative health consequences to women<sup>30</sup> and several other state legislatures are considering or have considered similar legislation.<sup>31</sup> The sworn Affidavit evidence of post-abortive women also attest that abortion hurts women physically, emotionally, and psychologically. In this case, the Court now has the benefit of fact-finding by Congress, the states, and real life experiences of post-abortive women as discussed below.

A. Deference Should Be Given to Congressional Findings.

As a co-equal branch of government, deference should be given to Congress’ findings which were based on extensive hearings and evidence. Congressional findings should be given great deference.<sup>32</sup> In Turner, this Court stated that “In reviewing the constitutionality of a statute,

‘courts must accord substantial deference to the predictive judgments of Congress . . . ’” and that its “sole obligation is ‘to assure that, in formulating its judgments, Congress has drawn reasonable inferences based on substantial evidence.’”<sup>33</sup> Congress has drawn “reasonable inferences based on substantial evidence” and the post-abortive women amici can attest based on their real life experiences that abortion hurts women physically, emotionally, and psychologically.<sup>34</sup>

Congressional findings should particularly be given deference in medical or health issues.<sup>35</sup> Congress should make factual findings because it is “an institution better equipped to amass and evaluate the vast amounts of data bearing on such an issue.”<sup>36</sup> Furthermore, the courts should not second-guess legislative judgments.<sup>37</sup> By way of analogy, this Court was not willing to second-guess Congress’ findings that child pornography is “harmful to the physiological, emotional, and mental health of the child.”<sup>38</sup> In fact, this Court noted that “sexually exploited children are unable to develop healthy affectionate relationships in later life, have sexual dysfunctions . . . ” and are “predisposed to self-destructive behavior such as drug and alcohol abuse or prostitution.”<sup>39</sup> Post-abortive women also attest to similar problems.<sup>40</sup> In this case, Congress’ findings should not be second-guessed.

Congress made numerous findings concerning the partial-birth abortion procedure.<sup>41</sup> The amici believe that Congress correctly found that (1) partial-birth abortion “is a gruesome and inhumane procedure that is never medically necessary and should be prohibited;”<sup>42</sup> (2) “partial-birth abortion remains a disfavored procedure that is not only unnecessary to preserve the health of the mother, but in fact poses serious risks to the long-term health of women and in some circumstances, their lives;”<sup>43</sup> (3) the overwhelming evidence after extensive congressional hearings “demonstrates that a partial-birth abortion is never necessary to preserve the health of a woman, poses significant health risks to a woman upon whom the procedure is performed and is outside the standard of medical care;”<sup>44</sup> and, (4) Congress had substantial evidence to conclude that “a ban on partial-birth abortion is not required to contain a ‘health’ exception, because the facts indicate that a partial-birth abortion is never necessary to preserve the health of a woman, poses serious risks to a woman’s health, and lies outside the standard of medical care.”<sup>45</sup> The amici support Congress’ findings and urge this Court to give the congressional findings great deference because its findings were based on extensive hearings, a substantial record, and were “reasonable inferences based on substantial evidence.”

B. Recent State Legislative Findings Also Support Congress' Findings of the Serious Physical, Emotional, and Psychological Harm to Women.

Prior to Roe and Doe, health issues like abortion were decided by the states who are able to hold hearings and determine whether the medical and scientific knowledge are more advanced to warrant a different legal conclusion. Recently, there are some important examples of states making determinations about the emotional and psychological health consequences of abortion.

In Texas, the Legislature passed the “Women’s Right to Know” Act<sup>46</sup> in 2003. As a result, the medical board of the Texas Department of Health held hearings and ultimately produced a booklet entitled “A Woman’s Right to Know” which is to be distributed to women who are thinking about having an abortion.<sup>47</sup> The booklet provides women with information concerning the unique DNA of the baby,<sup>48</sup> calls the baby an “unborn child,”<sup>49</sup> shows the growth and development of the child from four weeks gestation to thirty-eight weeks gestation,<sup>50</sup> describes the procedure,<sup>51</sup> and explains the physical, emotional, and psychological risks to women.<sup>52</sup>

Specifically, the Texas Department of Health’s “Woman’s Right to Know” booklet describes the partial-birth abortion procedure or “dilatation and extraction (D&X) procedure which it states can be done after sixteen weeks.<sup>53</sup> The booklet lists the following possible side effects and risks:

- “A hole in the uterus (uterine perforation) or other damage to the uterus.
- Injury to the bowel or bladder.
- A cut or torn cervix (cervical laceration).
- Incomplete removal of the unborn child, placenta, or contents of the uterus, requiring an additional operation.
- Infection.
- Complications from anesthesia such as respiratory problems, nausea and vomiting, headaches, or drug reactions.
- Inability to get pregnant due to infection or complication from an operation.
- A possible hysterectomy as a result of complication or injury during the procedure.
- Hemorrhage (heavy bleeding).
- Emergency treatment for any of the above problems, including the possible need to treat with an operation, medicines, or a blood transfusion.
- Rarely, death.”<sup>54</sup>

In addition, the Texas Department of Health notes in its booklet “A Woman’s Right to Know” that Former Surgeon General C. Everett Koop and the Physician’s Ad Hoc Coalition for Truth stated in 1996 that the partial-birth abortion procedure “. . . is never medically necessary to protect a mother’s health or her future fertility. On the contrary, this procedure can pose a significant threat to both.”<sup>55</sup>

The Texas Department of Health's pamphlet warns of the "emotional side of an abortion."<sup>56</sup> It states:

Some women may feel guilty, sad, or empty, while others may feel relief that the procedure is over. Some women have reported serious psychological effects after their abortion, including depression, grief, anxiety, lowered self-esteem, regret, suicidal thoughts and behavior, sexual dysfunction, avoidance of emotional attachment, flashbacks, and substance abuse. These emotions may appear immediately after an abortion, or gradually over a longer period of time. These feelings may recur or be felt stronger at the time of another abortion, or a normal birth, or on the anniversary of the abortion.<sup>57</sup>

Currently, a number of state legislatures are considering removing or in some other way limiting abortion or the health exception.<sup>58</sup> A notable example is South Dakota which has made substantial and detailed findings after extensive hearings. This led to the ban on abortion except to save the life of the mother.

In South Dakota, the Legislature enacted HB 1233 which created the South Dakota Task Force to Study Abortion [hereinafter Task Force]. The Task Force was specifically charged to study ten aspects of abortion including the physical and mental effects of abortion on women.<sup>59</sup> It was also charged with preparing a report that

The Task Force was to study (1) the practice of abortion since its legalization; (2) the body of knowledge concerning the development and behavior of the unborn child which has developed because of technological advances and medical experience since the legalization of abortion; (3) the societal, economic, and ethical impact detailed its findings along with any proposals for additional legislation that the Task Force would deem advisable.<sup>60</sup>

In compliance with its charge, the Task Force initially met on August 1, 2005 and then scheduled four full days of hearings.<sup>61</sup> “The Task Force heard live testimony of approximately fifty-five witnesses, including thirty-two experts, and considered the written reports and testimony from another fifteen experts” and the live testimony “was divided almost equally between witnesses who support the position that abortion is harmful to women and should be illegal and those who think it should be legal.”<sup>62</sup> In addition, the Task Force received approximately 3,500 pages of written materials, studies, reports, and testimony.<sup>63</sup> The Task Force noted that of particular significance were the Affidavits of almost 2,000 post-abortive women who provided statements about their real life experiences.<sup>64</sup> The Task Force stated that “[o]f these post-abortive women, over 99% of them testified that abortion is destructive of and effects of legalized abortion; (4) the degree to which decisions to undergo abortions are voluntary and informed; (5) the effect and health risks that undergoing abortions has on the women, including the effects on the women’s physical and mental health, including the delayed onset of cancer, and her subsequent life and socioeconomic experiences; (6) the nature of the relationship between a pregnant woman and her unborn child; (7) whether abortion is a workable method for the pregnant woman to waive her rights to a relationship with the child; (8) whether the unborn child is capable of experiencing physical pain; (9) whether the need exists for additional protections of the rights of pregnant women contemplating abortion; and, (10) whether there is any interest of the state or the mother or the child which would justify changing the laws relative to abortion. Id. at 6.

the rights, interests, and health of women and that abortion should not be legal.”<sup>65</sup>

After hearing all of the evidence from experts and post-abortion women, the Task Force stated:

Further, the Task Force finds that the pre-abortion counseling provided often does not prepare women who have abortions for the psychological outcomes they may experience after their abortions. In addition, women who receive little or no information about possible emotional health risks of this procedure may significantly compromise their mental health and the quality of their lives for years to come. Due to the very limited information disclosed by abortion providers, women are not fully aware that abortion carries with it the potential to damage their physical, emotional, interpersonal, and spiritual well-being.<sup>66</sup>

The Task Force also addressed the issue of the psychological consequences of terminating the life of the child. The Task Force stated:

Perhaps worse, the pregnant mother is not told prior to her abortion that the procedure will terminate the life of a human being. The psychological consequences can be devastating when that woman learns, subsequent to the abortion, that this information was withheld – information that would have resulted in her declining to submit to an abortion. Her anger at being deceived and being prevented from making an informed decision for herself is exacerbated by her realization that she was implicated in the killing of her own child in utero. Aside from the injustice of her being deprived of making her own informed decision (see Section II-D), the psychological harm of

In addition, the Task Force found that:

. . . it is simply unrealistic to expect that a pregnant mother is capable of being involved in the termination of the life of her own child without risk of suffering significant psychological trauma and distress. To do so is beyond the normal, natural, and healthy capability of a woman whose natural instincts are to protect and nurture her child.<sup>68</sup>

The Task Force heard testimony from Dr. Vincent Rue, Ph.D., who is a psychotherapist, professor, and was special consultant to then-U.S. Surgeon General Dr. C. Everett Koop on abortion morbidity. The Task Force stated: “In 1981, Dr. Rue provided the first clinical evidence of post-abortion trauma, identifying this psychological condition as ‘Post-abortion Syndrome’ in testimony before the U.S. Congress.”<sup>69</sup> The Task Force heard evidence that individuals with Post-abortion Syndrome “experience symptoms of avoidance (efforts to escape from reminders of the event), intrusion (unwanted thoughts, nightmares, and flashbacks related to the event), and arousal (exaggerated startle reflex, sleep disturbance, irritability) for a month or more following exposure to a traumatic event.”<sup>70</sup> Although for some women, the initial response is one of relief, many women later avoid the problem through repression and denial, usually for years – “5 years is common, 10 or 20 is not unusual.”<sup>71</sup>

The Task Force found the following mental health outcomes:

1. “Based on methodological improvements characterizing these studies, prior works indicating that abortion is an emotionally benign medical procedure for most women are invalid and little reliance can be placed upon them;
2. In all the analyses conducted, women with a history of abortion were never found to be at a lower risk for mental health problems than their peers with no abortion experience;
3. Women with a history of induced abortion are at a significantly higher risk for the following problems: a) inpatient and outpatient psychiatric claims, particularly adjustment disorders, bipolar disorder, depressive psychosis, neurotic depression, and schizophrenia; b) substance use generally, and specifically during a subsequent pregnancy; and c) clinically significant levels of depression, anxiety, and parenting difficulties;
4. When compared to unintended pregnancies carried to term and other forms of perinatal loss, abortion poses more significant mental health risks; and
5. Cross-cultural data call into question the often-voiced view that psychological problems associated with abortion are socially constructed, as women living in a culture where abortion is normative and a much less volatile social issue, have been found to also suffer psychological effects of abortion.”<sup>72</sup>

Based on all of the evidence the Task Force concluded “that to fully protect the rights, interests, and health of the mother and the life of her unborn child, a ban on abortions is required.”<sup>73</sup> It is the real life experience of the post-abortive women amici that abortion hurts women emotionally and psychologically, and therefore, abortion should be banned to protect the health of the mother.

C. The Real Life Experiences of Post-abortive Women Demonstrate that Abortion Hurts Women, and Therefore, Congress Correctly Banned the Partial-Birth Abortion Procedure.

While Congress, in this case, focused on the physical consequences of abortion, the amici's real life experiences concur with Congress' findings that there are harmful and negative physical consequences to abortion. Abortion also has negative psychological effects on women. In Planned Parenthood v. Casey,<sup>74</sup> the Court placed abortion in the range of choices that are "central to personal dignity and autonomy, are central to the liberty protected by the Fourteenth Amendment."<sup>75</sup>

The Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit recently cited testimony that abortion as practiced is "almost always a negative experience for the patient . . ." <sup>76</sup> In Bell, the court struck down Texas abortion facility regulations that required Texas abortions to be done in a manner that enhanced women's "self-esteem" and "dignity."<sup>77</sup> Contrary to the non-evidence-based assumption in Casey, the decision in Bell and the Women's Affidavits refute the assumption that abortion enhances female dignity, self-esteem, and autonomy.<sup>78</sup>

Dr. David Reardon, one of the world's leading experts on the effects of abortion on women, further demonstrates the devastating psychological consequences of abortion. Dr. Reardon states that following temporary feelings of relief, there is emotional "paralysis" or post-abortion "numbness," guilt and remorse, nervous disorders, sleep disturbances, sexual dysfunction, depression, loss of self-esteem, self-destructive behavior such as suicide, thoughts of suicide, and alcohol and drug abuse, chronic problems with relationships, dramatic personality changes, anxiety attacks, difficulty grieving, increased tendency toward violence, chronic crying, difficulty concentrating, flashbacks, and difficulty in bonding with later children.<sup>79</sup>

The real life experiences of the post-abortive women also confirm what the research has discovered. The women were asked: How has abortion affected you? Typical responses from their sworn Affidavits<sup>80</sup> which are located at Appendix B included depression,<sup>81</sup> suicidal

<sup>82</sup> For example, Donna M. Razin (Florida) – “Deep regret – initially I was suicidal – as the years have progressed I have developed a heightened level of bitterness and anger and self-hate.” App. B at 12. Kim Marie Blackowiak (Minnesota) – “Yes, I was extremely sad, depressed, and suicidal after my abortion. After my abortion – I used drugs and alcohol frequently to numb the feelings.” App. B at 33. Brandie M. Atwood (Arkansas) – “Abortion turned a 14-year-old school girl into a suicidal teenager that lived with feelings of guilt, rejection, and helplessness.” App. B at 35.

<sup>83</sup> For example, C.R. (Georgia) – “Yes. I feel emotionally scarred. Years went by of hiding it. Then something started triggering flash backs. Children’s birthdays bring on extreme sadness. Christmas time brings on times of depression, regret, and wondering what would my children have been like. Could they have made a difference in the world. Why couldn’t I have given them a chance at life like my mother gave me!” App. B at 12-13. S.T. (Tennessee) – “Depression and flashbacks after the abortion. I had no self-worth. I turned to drugs and alcohol and relationships with no meaning.” App. B at 25.

<sup>84</sup> For example, J.L.M. (Texas) – “11 years later I am obviously still affected. Initially, I suffered from depression, alcohol use increased, increased promiscuity, due to my lowered self esteem. My grades suffered in college. Relationships were difficult. I had nightmares, flashbacks, and grief.” App. B at 14. Kristen Pettibone (Georgia) – “My abortion devastated me. I lost respect for my boyfriend, respect for myself. I became an alcoholic, dabbled in drugs to forget what I had done!” App. B at 16. Dana Nicole Landers (Florida) – “For years my abortion decision led me down a self-destructive path even until the point of wanting to die. I went from an honor roll student in high school to a drug addict. I suffered from depression, anger, guilt, regret, and denial just to name a few.” App. B at 17. Deborah R. Paine (Georgia) – “I turned to 11 years of alcohol and drug addiction to cope with the regret. In my need to punish myself, I had a tubal ligation (sterilization). So I am childless. After killing my children, I did not deserve to be a mother.” App. B at 19.

<sup>85</sup> For example, Janice L. Bartlett (Florida) – “Devalued, dehumanized me. Took away my dignity and self-worth. Suffered from shame and guilt. Became depressed and even attempted suicide. Also led to use of alcohol, drugs, and sexual promiscuity.” App. B at 22. C.L.R. (Arizona) – “My abortion immediately led to hopelessness, promiscuity, and drinking binges. I could not escape the pain and guilt. I’ve been through 19 years of intermittent counseling.” App. B at 24. E.A.W. (Tennessee) – “Drugs and promiscuity didn’t help.” App. B at 27.

guilt,<sup>86</sup> and secrecy.<sup>87</sup> Each of them made the “choice” to abort their baby, and they have regretted their “choices.”<sup>88</sup>

Beverly A. Green (Minnesota) – “I went into a black tunnel for years. Started using drugs, drinking, more promiscuity, very insecure, hated myself – the list goes on . . .” App. B at 41.

<sup>86</sup> For example, Hemda Ben-Judah (Georgia) – “I have lived with guilt for many years.” App. B at 22. Connie Ambrecht (Georgia) – “Guilt felt for years . . .” App. B at 21. Mary Ellen York (Michigan) – “I was affected dramatically by my abortion. For years I couldn’t even look at a baby and when I heard the word “abortion” I would just cringe. I suffered depression and I didn’t like myself very much. Feelings of guilt. I found it very hard to forgive myself. It took my life from me.” App. B at 26. J.S.W. (California) – “Guilt, shame, feelings of being a really horrible person.” App. B at 28.

<sup>87</sup> For example, T.J.H. (California) – “. . . deep sense of loss and guilt/secretcy.” App. B at 18. Melody A. Athey (Kansas) – “I repressed any memory of the experience for 25 years. My whole lifestyle changed after my abortion. I started drinking heavily and married an alcoholic shortly after. I tried suicide once and considered it several times. I had repeated periods of depression especially around the anniversary date of my abortion. The guilt I felt was overwhelming.” App. B at 35.

<sup>88</sup> For example, Cathy L. Moffat (Utah) – “I have regretted my choices the rest of my life.” App. B at 13-14. Diane M. Hanson (Colorado) – “It changed my life, how I viewed myself, it took away my self-worth. It was devastating and caused several years of intense pain and sorrow. The hardest part was knowing ‘it was my choice’ that caused my baby’s death and I couldn’t do anything to change that or make it better!” App. B at 38. Lori Crossman (Michigan) – “It devastated me emotionally, mentally, and spiritually. I cannot go back and reverse my “choices” – I cannot get my children back. They are dead because abortion was legal and easy to access.” App. B at 45. Dana Renee Nickles (Arkansas) – “In the beginning I thought I was doing the right thing. Only afterwards did I realize the TRUTH! My conscience was seared, my heart was broken. I lived in a state of depression looking at drugs as the answer to my problem. And the problem – I had killed my child! See you don’t realize what happens to yourself until it’s too late, you’ve already done it and there’s no turning back. I can’t turn back time – if I could – I WOULDN’T HAVE AN ABORTION!! I was emotionally torn apart.” App. B at 15.

The emotional and psychological pain does not go away,<sup>89</sup> and therefore, abortion is a short term solution with long term negative consequences.

Congress' findings, the findings of the South Dakota Task Force on Abortion, and sworn Affidavits of the women in Appendix B are only the tip of the abortion iceberg. Care Net<sup>90</sup> and other pregnancy resource centers attest that their organizations had over 100,000 women in post-abortion recovery programs in 2004 alone. It is estimated that there are more than one million abortions each year. If even 1 in 10 women suffer from negative psychological consequences of abortion, then Congress and the state legislatures should hold hearings, make factual findings, and pass legislation concerning abortion. Congress and the state legislatures should be allowed to protect women's health from the negative physical and psychological effects of abortion.

Failing to allow the federal and state legislative branches to hear the evidence concerning abortion only prolongs the anguish and debate that has divided this country. Although Justice O'Connor called "the contending sides of a national controversy to end their national division by accepting a common mandate" which she alleged was rooted in the Constitution,<sup>91</sup> this has not been the case. Justice Scalia recognized what has become the national reality:

Quite to the contrary, by foreclosing all democratic outlet for the deep passions this issue

<sup>89</sup> For example, Caroline Burnett (Florida) – "It took my innocence. Robbed me of self-worth . . . I thought it would be over after one day but fifteen years later, I'm still haunted by the memories and the tremendous guilt of, now when I understand, having robbed my children of life." App. B at 18.

<sup>90</sup> Care Net was founded in 1975. In 1980, Care Net opened its first affiliated pregnancy center in Baltimore, Maryland. Its focus is to develop, equip, and promote more than 900 pregnancy centers across North America. See www.care-net.org.

arouses, by banishing the issue from the political forum that gives all participants, even the losers, the satisfaction of a fair hearing and an honest fight, by continuing the imposition of a rigid national rule instead of allowing for regional differences, the Court merely prolongs and intensifies the anguish.<sup>92</sup>

The post-abortive women amici urge this Court to end its “rigid national rule” and allow the federal and state legislative branches of government to determine the health facts about abortion. Congress and state legislatures should be allowed to protect women by holding hearings, making findings of fact, and enacting legislation based on the evidence.

III. THIS CASE DEMONSTRATES ABORTION ISSUES ARE VERY COMPLEX ISSUES THAT ARE FACT BOUND AND INVOLVE NATIONAL AND STATE POLICY THAT ARE BEST LEFT TO THE LEGISLATIVE BRANCHES OF GOVERNMENT, AND THEREFORE, CONGRESS’ EXCLUSION OF THE HEALTH EXCEPTION SHOULD BE UPHELD.

Prior to Roe v. Wade<sup>93</sup> and Doe v. Bolton,<sup>94</sup> health issues such as abortion were traditionally state issues.<sup>95</sup> The Roe Court noted that the Texas statute was “typical of those that have been in effect in many States for approximately a century<sup>96</sup> and traced the history of abortion and referenced the state statutes pertaining to abortion.<sup>97</sup> The Roe and Doe Court, however, constitutionalized the right to abortion and thereby overturned the abortion laws in all fifty states.<sup>98</sup> In addition, the federal courts were empowered to strike down state or federal abortion laws that prohibited or regulated abortions.<sup>99</sup> This became evident in Stenberg v. Carhart<sup>100</sup> where the Court invalidated the laws in Nebraska as well as those in twenty-nine other states that prohibited the partial-birth abortion procedure. It is also true in this case where federal courts in California,<sup>101</sup> Nebraska,<sup>102</sup> and New York<sup>103</sup> enjoined Congress' Partial-Birth Abortion Ban Act of 2003.<sup>104</sup>

<sup>95</sup> Gibbons v. Ogden, 22 U.S. (9 Wheat.) 1, 204 (1824) recognized that under what was later called the state’s “police power” the states could regulate “health laws of every description.” The Court stated “[T]hat immense mass of legislation which embraces everything within the territory of a state not surrendered to a general government; all of which can be most advantageously exercised by the states themselves. Inspection laws, quarantine laws, health laws of every description, as well as for regulating the internal commerce of a State . . . are component parts of this mass.” Id. at 203.

Because the Roe Court recognized a constitutional right to abortion, it also removed the abortion debate from the legislative and political process. In 2003, Norma McCorvey, the "Roe" of Roe v. Wade, filed a Rule 60<sup>105</sup> Motion to vacate that 1973 decision because of significant changes in the factual and legal conditions which make the decision no longer just or equitable.<sup>106</sup> At the Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit,<sup>107</sup> Judge Edith Jones reviewed McCorvey's legally sufficient and compelling evidence consisting of 5,347 pages of post-abortive women's affidavits, medical experts, and former abortion clinic personnel. Judge Jones correctly stated in her concurring opinion the importance of the Supreme Court re-evaluating Roe and expressed her fervent hope that this Court would acknowledge the developments and re-evaluate Roe.<sup>108</sup> Judge Jones summarized the evidence including evidence of the long-term emotional and psychological damage which is currently in issue with the health exception and the "perverse result"<sup>109</sup> that an issue that affects millions of women and unborn babies cannot be heard or meaningfully debated:

At the same time, because the Court's rulings have rendered basic abortion policy beyond the power of our legislative bodies, the arms of representative government may not meaningfully debate McCorvey's evidence. The perverse result of the Court's having determined through constitutional adjudication this fundamental social policy, which affects over a million women and unborn babies each year, is that the facts no longer matter . . .<sup>110</sup>

Judge Jones concluded:

One may fervently hope that the Court will someday acknowledge such developments and re-evaluate Roe and Casey accordingly. That the Court's constitutional decision making leaves our Furthermore, in 1973 when the Supreme Court decided Roe v. Wade and Doe v. Bolton, abortion was illegal in most states and relatively rare.<sup>112</sup> No evidence existed then regarding how widespread legalized abortion would actually affect women. The Court assumed that abortion would be good for women and made many non-evidence-based assumptions. The Court assumed abortion was like other medical procedures and as safe as childbirth because the long-term effects of abortion on women were unknown at the time.<sup>113</sup> Based on the little evidence before it, a single affidavit from Norma McCorvey, the “Roe” of Roe v. Wade, the Court knew that unwanted pregnancies could put pressure on women and that women needed help and compassion in such situations.<sup>114</sup> The Court had no evidence or experience on whether abortion would in fact help or hurt women in the long run.

The evidence from post-abortive women now shows that abortion is merely a short-term “solution” with long-term negative physical and psychological consequences. Thus, deference should be given to Congress’ factual findings and its ban on partial-birth abortion should be held constitutional. Sandra Cano and the post-abortive women amici urge this Court to uphold the ban on partial-birth abortion and the exclusion of the health exception.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons and those in Petitioner's brief on the merits, Congress' ban on partial-birth abortion should be upheld.

AFFIDAVIT OF SANDRA CANO

STATE OF GEORGIA	§	KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS:
COUNTY OF FULTON	§

BEFORE ME, the undersigned authority, on this day personally appeared SANDRA CANO, who after being duly sworn upon his [sic] oath deposed and said as follows:

- “1. My name is Sandra Cano, and I reside in Georgia. I am competent to make this Affidavit. I have personal knowledge of the facts stated herein and the following is true and correct.
2. In 1973, I was the woman designated as ‘Mary Doe’, the Plaintiff in Doe v. Bolton, 410 U.S. 179 (1973), the companion case to Roe v. Wade, 410 U.S. 113 (1973). Although the courts understood that ‘Mary Doe’ was not my real name, what the courts did not know was that, contrary to the facts recited in my 1970 Affidavit, I neither wanted nor sought an abortion. I was nothing but a symbol in Doe v. Bolton with my experience and circumstances discounted and misrepresented. During oral arguments before the United States Supreme Court one of the Justices stated that it did not matter whether I was a real or fictitious person. This is where the Court was so very wrong. It did matter. I was a real person, and I did not want an abortion.
3. Abortion is just like Doe v. Bolton. It discounts the real experiences of the mothers. It misrepresents that abortion is for them. Just as Mary Does’ true desires were hidden from the courts by those promoting abortion, so, too, have the real facts about abortion been hidden. Today, this Court will know the real truth about the real woman who was used to deceive, not only the courts, but the women of this nation about the reality of abortion.
4. ‘Sandra Race Bensing’ was my real name in 1970. I was twenty-two years old and pregnant with my fourth child when I first met the Doe v. Bolton attorney, Margie Pitts Hames. I had gone to legal aid to get a divorce and to find an attorney to help me regain custody of my two children. My husband was not supporting us, and we had to live at the Salvation Army. At times we lived with my mother, but my stepfather did not want us there. I loved my children, but I could not care for them financially.

5. I was a trusting person and did not read the papers placed in front of me by my lawyer. I truly thought Margie Pitts Hames was having me sign divorce papers. I did not even suspect that the papers related to abortion until one afternoon when my mother and my lawyer told me that my suitcase was packed to go to a hospital, and that they had scheduled an abortion for the next day. They advised me that my doctor, Dr. Donald Block, was going to perform an abortion. I told both my mother and my lawyer that I would not have an abortion. Not then. Not ever. They persisted in their demands upon me.
6. When the demand for an abortion persisted, I fled to Oklahoma and stayed at the home of my ex-husband's grandmother. I remained in Oklahoma until my mother and lawyer assured me that they would cease their pressuring me to have an abortion. I was relieved that the ordeal was ended. Because they promised never to force me to have an abortion, I returned to Georgia.
7. My lawyer sent me a plane ticket so I could fly from Oklahoma to Georgia. She wanted me to be in a courtroom with other pregnant mothers. The night before I went to court, my mother and my lawyer expressed concern that I would leave again, and so they had me stay at the apartment of a legal-aid lawyer. Before the court appearance, I was told by my lawyer not to say anything in court. As a result, I never did say anything in court.

8. My predicament made it difficult for me to take care of my children, but I didn't need an abortion. I needed help, but all of the people around me – my husband, my mother and my lawyer – refused to help me with my children.
9. Instead of real help, my mother, stepfather and my lawyer persisted in their demands that I have an abortion. Those demands were made for themselves so they would not be burdened. It was, in my mind, a demand for what they thought was the easiest way for them to get out from under any obligation to help my new baby and me. But the abortion was not in my interest. I was the mother of a baby for whom I was responsible. I had a natural desire to have my baby and to raise her. I carried my child to full term and gave birth. Because no one would help me I felt compelled to surrender my rights and give my baby up for adoption.
10. One day in 1973, my mother and stepfather called me into their bedroom. Their television was on. They shouted to me excitedly, "Look! You won! You won!" Margie Pitts Hames was on television and the story reported that the United States Supreme Court had made abortion legal. At that time, I did not fully comprehend what my role was in the Court's decision in Doe v. Bolton.
11. Over the years, I gained a greater and greater sense that I was wrongfully used in Doe v. Bolton. A number of years ago, I decided that I wanted to see my file in the case so I could see what was said about me. I went to the courthouse to see my records which were under seal. An attorney, Wendell Bird, agreed to represent me and he asked that my records in my case be unsealed. I produced my driver's license, my birth certificate, and my marriage certificate. The attorney who represented me in Doe v. Bolton, Margie Pitts Hames, tried to stop me from getting my own records, and I did not understand why.

12. It was only when I first saw the opened records in Doe v. Bolton that I understood why Margie didn't want me to see them. The records stated that I applied for an abortion, was turned down, and, as a result, sued the state of Georgia. According to the records, I had applied for an abortion through a panel of nine doctors and nurses at a state-funded hospital, Grady Memorial Hospital. That was a false statement. After reading the court records, I contacted the hospital and tried to obtain my records. At first I was told there were records, but when my new attorney sent his legal assistant to review the records, we were told that they did not exist. The hospital said they didn't have any records. I never sought an abortion there or anywhere else.
13. At times, I have been forced to reflect upon the events that led up to that day in 1973 when my mother and stepfather told me about the Supreme Court decision in Doe v. Bolton. In 1970, my life was a mess. I was having my fourth child, but no responsible husband or real place to live. I was uneducated. When I came back from Oklahoma, I was so relieved that no one was going to pressure me to have an abortion that I took part in a court proceeding without understanding what was really happening. I was used wrongly, but I didn't inquire enough. In retrospect, there were big signs which revealed what was happening.

14. Once a television man came to Margie's office and I was asked what I thought of abortion. I told him that, "I don't believe in abortion and I don't want an abortion." I also said I didn't care if anyone else had an abortion, that it wasn't my business. All I cared about, at that time, was that I didn't want an abortion. I was not thinking of the other women. I did not understand that I was involved in a case that sought to legalize abortion. I was naïve. In retrospect, perhaps, I could have discovered what was going on. But I was in a crisis. I depended on my mother's help. My lawyer became upset with me because I would never say to anyone that I would have an abortion. I should have, perhaps, understood what was happening, but I was simply attempting to survive. I remember Margie debating me. She claimed we were involved in a liberation right. She said women were entitled to equal pay for equal work, and I agreed. I never saw the pleading filed in court.
15. Many years later, when I saw the unsealed records in my case, I could not believe what the certification filed in my name said. I am certain the signature on the affidavit that said I wanted an abortion was not mine. I never saw that affidavit until the records were unsealed. If it was my signature, it was obtained without my knowing the contents of the affidavit. I had fled to Oklahoma to avoid an abortion. My lawyer knew I would never say I wanted one. The only reason I went to a lawyer was to get my children back. My predicament was used to argue that my new baby's life should be terminated.
16. I have often rethought how my involvement in Doe v. Bolton came about. Over the years it has haunted me. I never had an abortion, but I know what it is like to feel responsible for one. I know what it is like to feel like a mother who helped terminate the life of her own child. After Doe v. Bolton was decided and I was told about my involvement, I felt responsible for the experiences to which the mothers and babies were being subjected. In a way, I felt that I was involved in the abortions – that I was somehow responsible for the lives of the children and the horrible experiences of their mothers. I have felt that experience that the death of a child is my fault; the helplessness the mother feels as events occur around her without any power to stop them; and the guilt that is associated with being told by the courts and society that the child's death was performed for the mother and only the mother.

17. This last assertion – that abortion is performed for the mother – is the cruelest misrepresentation of all. My own circumstance, the one used to justify legal abortion in the first place, is a perfect example of this reality. There are many doctors, and clinics and others who were plaintiffs in Doe v. Bolton. As Mary Doe, I was the only pregnant mother who was a plaintiff. All of these other people – the doctors, nurses and clinics were using the Court to do what they thought was in my interest. They pressured the Court claiming I need the right to terminate the life of my own child. It was their solution, not mine. They claimed they did it out of compassion for me. But it was a false compassion. A true compassion would result in the fathers living up to their responsibilities. A true compassion, once a mother is in the predicament that the child's father abandoned her, would advise her how to get help and would provide her help. Unfortunately, the legal right to an abortion was sought in my case because others thought it was too hard for them to give me real help. The abortion was sought for them, not for me.

18. But no matter how hard life happens to be, no one has the right to kill a baby – especially the baby’s mother. She is the trustee of her child’s life. She, of all people, has the sacred duty to protect the child. But the child’s interests are not at odds with her own. They are in concert with one another. The mother derives a great benefit from her relationship with her child. It is as beneficial to her as it is the child. It is never in the interest of a mother to terminate the life of her own child.
19. I have been forced to live with the consequence of this false compassion for too long for me not to bring to the attention of the Court the fact that abortion is not in a woman’s interest, and the fact that legalization of abortion began with manipulations and misrepresentations. Too many women who lost their children through abortion have told me of their emptiness, their sadness, the void in their lives, and how others forced them to have abortions and then blamed the abortion on the mother.
20. The experience of Doe v. Bolton must be understood and accounted for, not simply to correct the record in my own case, but to correct the law of abortion in general: abortion is not in the interest of a mother. It is a false solution imposed upon a mother by others.
21. Doe v. Bolton and my circumstanced [sic] were misused. Doe v. Bolton was a fraud upon the court. Doe v. Bolton was a secret case about abortion, which is a secret procedure. This secretiveness allows others to prevail upon the mother and others can act against her interest. Women have told me how they were forced to have an abortion against their will. If it was alleged that I spoke for other women in Doe v. Bolton, then I gladly speak for other women in this case to say that abortion is too coercive by nature; too much the will of others; too much the will of a society which finds abortion more convenient for it than a commitment to the well being of the mother and the child.

22. The real experiences of the women must be known and taken into consideration by the court. Abortion is too much what others would like a woman to do, rather than what is in her interest and what she really wants.
23. Others told the court that I wanted an abortion. The law has developed, in part, based upon what my lawyer claimed I wanted, and that abortion was in my interest. I feel I have the duty to tell this Court the truth about what I really thought then, and what I think now. As the Plaintiff in Doe v. Bolton, I have a very substantial interest in the litigation before this court in the matter of Roe v. Wade and I can provide the court a unique perspective of the Doe v. Bolton case not available from any other source.
24. In the 1970s the people closest to me successfully manipulated my circumstances to justify abortion and wanted me to have an abortion, but I refused. Today this Court has the opportunity to review, not just the real facts surrounding the Roe v. Wade and Doe v. Bolton, the original abortion decisions, but the opportunity to review the testimony of hundreds of women who have real, true, experiences with abortion and not perpetuate the Doe v. Bolton fraud upon the Court.

Further Affiant sayeth not.”

How has abortion affected you? Too many ways to write! – It ended, or attributed to my divorce from the father. I'm overly concerned and worried about my living children. I've had nightmares for years. I'm worried that I may develop breast cancer. The loss of relationship with my aborted child can never be replaced. I've had problems with eating disorders and depression. It took me 18 years to reconcile my relationship with God which had previously been very important to me. It forever altered my life.

How has abortion affected you? Deep regret – initially I was suicidal – as the years have progressed I have developed a heightened level of bitterness and anger and self-hate. I feared God, have not been able to attend church because of my fear of God, unforgiveness, shame, guilt, condemnation, inability to bond and fit in with other women, inability to be intimate. The deep emotional scars were a large contributing factor in my divorce – a very, very catastrophic choice! Great sense of loss and grief.

How has abortion affected you? Yes. I feel emotionally scarred. Years went by of hiding it. Then something started triggering flashbacks. Children's birthdays bring on extreme sadness. Christmas time brings on times of depression, regret, and wondering what would my children have been like. Could they have made a difference in the world. Why couldn't I have given them a chance at life like my mother gave me! No one ever showed me the stages of pregnancy. If someone had, I wouldn't have went through it. If I would have known the emotional effects that was years later, I would have reconsidered.

How has abortion affected you? Depression, low-self esteem, guilt, condemnation, and shame, sleepless nights, nightmares and torment, thoughts of self-hate and suicide, lost, confused, destroyed relationships throughout my life, unloved, unlovable, unable to trust God or anyone. Only God can heal this! Post-abortion ectopic pregnancy, fear of not being able to conceive and birth healthy babies, pain, unable to receive love and healing from God and others, worthlessness, strive and drive to perform to be loved and accepted, isolation – emotionally. Lost, confused, needy – shunned by others. I reach out to for help. In a state where I could not forgive myself. Psychologically damaged for the rest of your life (until God heals). I have regretted my choices the rest of my life. Grief, anxiety, regret, morbid obesity and health problems, scar tissue, blood clots.

Damaged marriage. Abortion hurts women.

How has abortion affected you? 11 years later I am obviously still affected. Initially, I suffered from depression, alcohol use increased, increased promiscuity, due to my lowered self-esteem. My grades suffered in college. Relationships were difficult. I had nightmares, flashbacks, and grief. Now with a 6 year old son, I am overly protective to a fault. His relationship with his father is damaged because of my own fears of losing my son. I feel God could still punish me by taking this child away. It's mired my motivation and hindered my career (ironically since my reasoning in part to have an abortion was so my career wouldn't be hindered.) It has cut the soul out of my entire life.

I lived in a state of depression looking at drugs as the answer to my problem. And the problem – I had killed my child? See you don't realize what happens to yourself until it's too late, you've already done it and there's no turning back. I can't turn back time – if I could – I WOULDN'T HAVE AN ABORTION!! I was emotionally torn apart. I didn't know what happiness was, confusion, my best friend! I built a wall around myself with bricks of denial. Shutting EVERYONE out!! I hated myself. How has abortion affected you? During the many years of denial of the abortion, I experienced horrendous bouts of anger, depression, panic attacks, thoughts of death (my death), fears. I was constantly at the doctor's office, trying to find a physical reason for my disordered life. I drank alcohol secretly. I avoided anything to do with babies. Five years after my abortion, I married and gave birth to my son. It was during that pregnancy I realized I had destroyed a life through abortion. My downward spiral began. I was an overprotective mother. I "overdid" everything – to compensate for what I had done.

How has abortion affected you? I spent years in a depression unable to cope well with everyday life. It has hindered my bonding with my children. I lost all desire to do anything productive. I could not concentrate on school, eventually I flunked out. I became suicidal because of the guilt. I could not be around babies.

How has abortion affected you? I've lost memory of timing of them. The two events are difficult to differentiate. I always want another child. I suffer returning bouts of depression. There is always an unexplained emptiness in me. I struggled with addictive behavior. I feel emptiness and often worthlessness and often anger that I don't know what to do with. I expect too much from others. Feel victimized. Was very promiscuous and drank often. Lowered self-worth. Question my existence – part of me feels numb, dead.

How has abortion affected you? The next day after, I went into a deep, dark, depression for over a year. I cried almost every day and for some time I turned to alcohol to ease the pain of the horrible guilt I felt. My life before then had been normal and mostly happy. I had almost made straight “A’s” and was an honor society student. I was not prone to drinking alcohol or anything similar in high school. I had the abortion because I was afraid and insecure. It was the worst choice I ever made in my entire life. I deeply regret it.

I attempted to become pregnant with help of fertility drugs, etc., for over one and a half years, and cannot. It may be because of abortion. I am HAUNTED by the fact that it was temporary insanity that led me to that clinic and had they made me wait one day because of my emotional state, I'd be a mom.

Several relationships were destroyed. Two years after the abortion, I had a menstrual extraction – another name for an abortion. I rushed into that decision out of fear of the severe sickness I had with my first pregnancy. I nearly had a third abortion with my 13 yr. old daughter.

My last abortion in 1991, the reality of what I had done so many times hit me and almost killed me. The emotional and spiritual death I felt almost killed me physically. During my pregnancy with my son in 1992, it was a deadly struggle to deal with the pregnancy. Although participating in counseling I still feel a certain

How has abortion affected you? Has caused tremendous guilt, shame, emotional trauma, when I realized what I had done. I have suffered from depression, bouts of crying, anger, great sorrow and grief. For a number of years, I suffered from "Anniversary Syndrome," a type of depression around the time of conception, the date of the abortion and what would have been the estimated due date. I have also suffered from grief around Mother's Day. I have had low self-esteem. I "ran" from myself and from God for a number of years before I began to deal with this. It has affected my ability to relate well with others. It has interfered with intimacy with my husband. The depression, anger and emotional instability resulting from the abortion affected my ability to function properly on the job and almost caused me to lose a job. My first child, after the abortion, was breech presentation due, I believe, to the fact that there had been death (murder) in my womb. He was delivered by C-Section, which involves its own complications. I had difficulty forgiving myself and others who had any involvement with my decision to abort.

Sometimes I have crying spells where I cannot be consoled and once it passes I feel better, but the ache in my heart still remains. I have asked God to forgive me and I know He has but I can't forgive myself. I am easily motivated by guilt because of the way I feel about what I have done. I have had trouble with my uterus and have painful and long periods. I don't know if the abortions contributed to this but I can't imagine that they helped.

We were ecstatic! Troubles developed. At 7 weeks, we were reassured by sonogram that baby was OK. I watched its little heart beat. At 8 weeks (May 1990), I miscarried our precious baby. Held in my hands and wept over our tiny fully formed baby and the lie I had believed – “blob of cells” – “not human” – in 1974. How has abortion affected you? From the day I walked out of the clinic after the abortion, I was never the same. It felt like part of me had died. I became gradually depressed – later becoming severe – I became anorexic, bulimic, severely depressed and suicidal. I hated being around children after this. I felt much guilt and shame.

When I realized the development of my child and the fact that abortion stopped my child's beating heart, I was filled with anger and sorrow. At the age of 16, I was not mature enough to make such a decision. My other children also know they have a missing sibling.

How has abortion affected you? I kept it a secret over 30 years with only a handful of people knowing most of who are now dead. I was and am embarrassed, remorseful, sad, and forgiven for the murder I allowed and sought for my baby whom they called my "fetus." No counseling was given about after effects physically, mentally, socially, or spiritually. Everyone can talk about tonsils being removed, but it's a deep dark secret to have murdered your child. I felt I had been weak. I let down everyone including God, and felt there was no option.

How has abortion affected you? Emotionally I have had a difficult time with grief, guilt, shame and regrets. The thought that I chose to kill two of my own children has been overwhelming. I am emotionally hardened as a result. In my last pregnancy I had placenta previa which was potentially life threatening to me and my child.

Studies have shown that women who have had abortions have a greater risk of this (seven to fifteen times).

Emotionally, I became more angry, depressed, and withdrawn. Socially, I did not want to be around others. Physically, I forced myself to lose weight, which was unhealthy for me. I have dealt with these feelings through counseling and much prayer.

How has abortion affected you? Let's say the last 32 years were filled with pain emotionally, low-self esteem, poor relationship with family and friends, never married and childless. Distant myself to children, aware of what I did each "likely birth date, October, feeling worthless – not being able to forgive myself to this day, makes learning to love myself very hard and know I am loved. The physical aspects are I have aberrations that have my intestines and uterus glued together and numerous infections. At age 20, I can say that abortion was responsible for my downward spiral of destructive lifestyle that I am only now at 53 putting back together.

How has abortion affected you? I tried to commit suicide. I hated myself. I was told by the media on TV and my friends that it was just a seed and some told me it was just a blob of blood and there was no way it could actually be a baby still I was at least three or four months into the pregnancy. My mother and my aunt took me to the clinic in Dallas, Texas. After I got back home (first I must say my mother was all for it before we left for Dallas). My mother told me she knew that I should not have ever done it. So that put more guilt on me. Just before we left, she told me that was the best thing to do.

How has abortion affected you? The truth was that two months following the abortion I would lose my womb causing a gradual reduction in my estrogen production, leading to estrogen deprivation resulting in delayed depression during an early and hard menopause. An abortion, not a pregnancy, caused serious consequences. The truth was that the night before my abortion appointment I asked aloud, "God, is there anything wrong in what I am going to do. Man says it isn't even life. What do You say?" I didn't hear an audible response and assumed it was OK. However, in the morning, a clerk from the clinic called to let me know that the doctor had to cancel his appointments for that morning and asked me what I wanted to do. I did not remember the night before, I did not make the connection. I was not listening. I informed my husband and he asked about the next Saturday. So, I made another appointment and I became responsible for my child's death. Guilty of murder.

How has abortion affected you? The physical effects I suffered included violent premature labor and massive hemorrhaging from numerous fragments of decidual and placental tissue retained in my uterus for over a month requiring a second surgical procedure to remove and from which the second doctor stated I could have died. Long-range physical effects included cervical incompetence due to the cervical dilation device used during the abortion procedure causing two subsequent miscarriages in my mid 20's. Bed confinement following heavy bleeding from a prematurely opened cervix allowed me to finally give birth at age 29. Observation of the dead baby that was birthed caused devastating emotional and psychological complications. Suicidal thoughts afterwards caused me to seek professional and spiritual help to overcome the shame and horror that I had killed a real baby. I endured chronic depression and emotional dysfunction as a result of flashbacks and other post-abortive syndromes . . . The short-term relief of terminating an unwanted pregnancy is completely overshadowed by this traumatic delivery for which a woman cannot possibly prepare herself psychologically. I thought I could handle terminating a “fetus” when I made my decision, but I could not handle terminating the small dead baby I witnessed. Women need protection from life-long physical and emotional complications that are suffered even more acutely from mid-term and late abortions, and women need the truth about the life, not “fetal tissue”, they are carrying to make informed decisions.
